INGLIS, LLOYD & Co.

Dominica, July 8, 1765.

By the Commissioners for the sale and disposal of lands in the Islands of Grenada, the Grenadines, Dominica, St. Vincent, and Tobago.

WHEREAS on account of the number of French inhabitants who have determined to take leases of their estates in the Neutral Islands, and from the multiplicity of surveying business necessary to be done, it has been found impracticable to proceed so speedily as the service requires without the assistance of more surveyors and negroes than those now employed under the commissioners. And as it hath been thought necessary to sell many plantations in those islands at computed quantities, subject to future surveys; and many of the persons who have purchased the same, are anxious that actual surveys may be immediately made of their estates, that they may be able to obtain their grants, and be certain of the quantity of their possessions, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, for the encouragement of surveyors to repair from other parts to the islands of St. Vincent and Dominica, and for the convenience of the persons who have purchased subject to future surveys, as well as the French inhabitants who intend taking leases of their estates, that they may immediately employ any surveyors who are natural subjects of the king of Great-Britain, (except those already in the service of the commissioners) to make actual surveys of the estates by them purchased, or of which they intend taking leases. And in order to prevent frauds, and that no persons may undertake the business who are not skilled therein; the following rules and restrictions are to be observed, and an allowance for the expence of making the surveys is to be made to the possessors of the lands as after-mentioned.

That every purchaser or possessor of lands as above described, shall be at liberty to employ any person to survey his land, being a natural subject of the king of Great-Britain, he the said purchaser or possessor finding negroes and other necessary assistance.

That every such surveyor shall act under instructions from JAMES SIMPSON, Esq; his Majesty's chief surveyor, so far as relates to the particular mode of executing such survey; whereof he shall return to the said chief surveyor, a plan laid down by a scale of twenty chains to an inch, together with a fair copy of his field-book, subscribed with his name; and make oath before one of his Majesty's justices of the peace, that his field book and the plan of his survey is just and true to the best of his knowledge: The surveyor shall also make the proper line or lines of distinction between the wood land and the cleared land, in the plan which he shall return of lands sold in St. Vincent and Dominica; and of the estates possessed by French inhabitants, he shall include only cleared lands within his survey, and shall express in the plan whether the land bounding thereon is cleared or wood lands, and if cleared by whom possessed.

That every person acting as a surveyor shall leave a written notice at the houses of the proprietors or possessors of the plantations adjoining to that which he is employed to survey, five days before he runs any of the out-lines of such plantation, and in such notice he shall express the particular day and hour when he intends to begin the said line, and from whence he intends to take his departure. And if the proprietors or possessors of such adjoining lands, or the representatives of either, shall think their property encroached upon by such line, the surveyor is not to proceed thereon without further directions from the chief surveyor. The surveyor is also required to inform himself of the boundaries of the plantation, which he shall be employed to survey, by application to the French or other neighbours.

That every person acting as a surveyor shall conform himself to the declaration made by his Majesty's commissioners previous to each sale, in regard to the distinction between cleared lands and wood lands; which expresses that every piece of land where the woods appear to have been heretofore cut down, shall be deemed cleared land, although overgrown with bushes, and if any dispute arises between the proprietor of such land, or his representative, and the surveyor, notice thereof shall be immediately given to the chief surveyor.

That every surveyor shall traverse not less than half a mile, nor more than one mile, nor more than one mile, of the sea shore, or some capital river, nearest the estate he shall be employed to survey, and connect it with the plan of such estate, in its proper situation with regard to course and distance.

That the commissioners shall be at liberty to direct the chief surveyor to survey any plantation they may think proper, notwithstanding it may have been before surveyed in the manner directed in the foregoing articles; and where one person shall have executed the surveys of more plantations than three, the chief surveyor is directed to write the names of the proprietors of such plantations on ballots, before two witnesses, and draw one out of three in the usual manner; and according to such lot he is to make survey of every third plantation, (unless the commissioners think it unnecessary) & make a return thereof.

That no survey or plan will be received by the commissioners, nor any consideration allowed by them for any work that is not conformable to these rules.

The commissioners hereby oblige themselves to pay unto the proprietors of such estates as may be surveyed in the manner aforesaid, as soon as they have the chief surveyor's return, that such survey has been performed agreeable to the directions before mentioned, and in conformity to his instructions, according to the following rates.

For each plantation, containing from one to twenty acres, two shillings sterling for the cleared and three shillings and six-pence sterling for the uncleared land per acre.

For ditto, from twenty to one hundred acres, one shilling and six pence sterling for the cleared, and three shillings sterling, the uncleared per acre.

For ditto, from one hundred to two hundred acres, one shilling and three pence sterling for the cleared, and two shillings and six pence sterling the uncleared per acre.

For ditto, from two hundred to five hundred acres, one shilling sterling for the cleared, and 2 shillings sterling the uncleared per acre.

For the traverses of sea shores or rivers, not exceeding the quantity before-mentioned, fifteen shillings sterling per mile.

Such persons as are determined to procure a survey of their plantations, according to the terms above mentioned, are desired to inform Mr. SIMPSON, the chief surveyor, of their intentions, or of their having already executed such survey, before the first day of November next, by a letter to be left for him at the commissioners office, at St. Vincent, or to the care of ANDREW DEWAR, Esq; in Dominica: And the commissioners expect, that returns of such surveys will be delivered in to the chief surveyor, before the first day of January next.

The instructions to be followed by the surveyors relating to the particular mode of executing the surveys will be immediately lodged at the commissioners office in St. Vincent, and with ANDREW DEWAR, Esq; at Dominica, from whence copies are to be taken.

By direction of the commissioners,
